Great Community. Great Zoo.

Thank you for being a part of it too!

The Point Defiance Zoological Society is thrilled to announce the completion of its four-project, $7.15 million capital campaign.

The results of the Vision for the Future fundraising effort will benefit zoo visitors now – and for years to come.

“We couldn’t have done it without the help and support of our community, the Zoo Society and zoo staff,” said campaign chair Tina De Falco. “It was their generosity that made this all possible.”

Started in 2007, the capital campaign funded the construction of three new exhibits: Animal Avenue, Red Wolf Woods: Road to Recovery and Cats of the Canopy. It also created a Permanent Endowment Fund that ensures the zoo has a steady revenue stream to support its programs and exhibits.

The Zoo Society is proud of the campaign’s success – and so grateful to everyone who made it happen!

Red Wolf Woods: Road to Recovery

This exhibit showcases the zoo’s commitment to conservation. The zoo’s Red Wolf breeding program has helped preserve and grow this nearly extinct species. Thanks to the efforts of PDZA and other organizations, the U.S. red wolf population has increased from 14 at its low to more than 250. Many of those animals have been released into the wild.

Red Wolf Woods: Road to Recovery, which opened in 2011, lets zoo visitors observe this majestic animal in its natural habitat, and learn more about how to protect the red wolf population.

Cats of the Canopy

This new home for our clouded leopards gives zoo visitors a rare opportunity to witness the daredevil antics and climbing feats of these elusive felids. The playful cats have amazed onlookers since the exhibit opened, launching themselves over tree tops and running headfirst down tree trunks.

This summer, the exhibit also housed two pairs of clouded leopard cubs, born out of breeding programs aimed at increasing the population of this endangered species. The cub den offered thousands of visitors a chance to see the tiny cubs eat, sleep, play and grow.

The Centennial Endowment

This endowment fund is one of the campaign’s most significant achievements. The Vision for the Future campaign designated 10 cents of every dollar donated (unless noted otherwise) to the fund. The interest generated by the fund’s investments provides a reliable income stream used to maintain the zoo’s programs and exhibits, including the new ones constructed from the campaign.

“The endowment is our gift to future generations of zoo lovers,” De Falco said.

Growing the endowment is an ongoing effort. For more information, please contact Matthew Jones, Interim Executive Director, at 253-404-3694 or mjones@thezoosociety.org.

Making it Happen: Our Donors

The Zoo Society received more than 900 donations to the Vision for Future Campaign including 100 percent participation by Zoo and Society staff as well as the Zoo Society Board of Directors. Other gifts to the campaign came from individuals, private businesses, and foundations. Every contribution made a difference, and helped us reach our goal. 🐾

“This was the largest capital campaign in the zoo’s history. Its success was vital to creating a more enriching and engaging experience for everyone who visits our zoo – today and for years down the road.”

– Tina De Falco, campaign chair

Animal Avenue

This is an awesome space for kids to play – and learn. Open since 2008, Animal Avenue showcases 19 new species, including lemurs, meerkats, insects, and fish. Kids especially get a kick out of watching the lemurs leap around a play structure, spying on the meerkats from a “Kids Only” hide-out, and climbing a giant spider web.

Point Defiance Zoological Society Mission Statement

The Zoo Society fosters the relationship between Point Defiance Zoo & Aquarium and our community. We sustain and grow membership, raise funds, and generate community support.

Wild Wonders Outdoor Theater:

Join the ADVENTURE at the Zoo this Summer!

Tilli the Aardvark with staff biologist Adrienne Umstead.

By Sara Mattison, Staff biologist

Topping the list of highly anticipated 2012 summer blockbusters such as The Avengers, The Adventures of Spider Man, and The Bourne Legacy is the brand new live animal show at the Zoo's Wild Wonders Outdoor Theater: Captain Adventure Versus Dr. Do-Nothing.

In this fast-paced adventure, the devious Dr. Do-Nothing has come up with a plan to take over the world—starting with Point Defiance Zoo & Aquarium! His mind ray is designed to brainwash people of all ages into staying inside on the couch, far away from all the wonders of nature.

The only hope for humanity comes in the form of outdoor superhero Captain Adventure (a mild-mannered zookeeper by day and a superhero by night), her coworker (a mild-mannered zookeeper all the time) and her sidekick, a young zoo visitor with a natural immunity to Dr. Do-Nothing's mind ray.

Captain Adventure and her friends embark on a quest to find the pieces of the mind-ray antidote, which Dr. Do-Nothing has cleverly hidden in various environments outside. Dr. Do-Nothing repeatedly tries to foil their efforts, but the plucky adventurers are helped along on their epic undertaking by wild animals with astonishing natural abilities. Tilli the Amazing Aardvark digs up a vital clue, Vader the Raven solves a puzzle that brings the group one step closer to defeating Dr. Do-Nothing and Herald the Wonder Dog (a superhero in his own right!) swoops in to the rescue. Along the way, everyone discovers fantastic ways to resist the urge to stay on the couch by trying new activities, and learning more about the world around them by becoming Citizen Scientists!

Captain Adventure and Herald the Wonder Dog need your help to defeat Dr. Do-Nothing! Join them and your favorite animals this summer at the Wild Wonders Outdoor Theater. Visit pdza.org to find out how you can join the adventure! 🐾

POINT DEFIANCE ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY

President's Perspective

By Edward Grogan

President, The Zoo Society Board of Directors

2011 was truly spectacular for Point Defiance Zoo & Aquarium and for the Zoo Society. It is a pleasure to share with all of our members the milestones we crossed during the year so that we can all celebrate the success together.

This time last year the President's message started with a celebratory "We're almost there!" At that time we had less than $750,000 left to raise in the Society's $7.15 million Vision for the Future capital campaign. I am overjoyed to report that as of December 31, 2011, The Zoo Society formally completed the four-year campaign. Thanks to members like you, we raised more than our goal, ensuring that our new exhibits (Animal Avenue, Red Wolf Woods: The Road to Recovery, and Cats of the Canopy) and our permanent endowment will be a lasting legacy.

Along with the conclusion of the campaign, Caryl Zenker, our Executive Director since 2007, announced her departure. We thank her for her leadership during the largest private fundraising campaign in Zoo history.

Clouded leopards also made a big splash at Point Defiance this year. How could you forget the addition of Taji and Sumalee, and their partners Lisu and Sabah? Just this winter Taji and Lisu were sent to the Denver Zoo, while Sumalee and Sabah were sent to the Central Florida Zoo. These cubs have allowed us to showcase the urgent need for conservation efforts with these beautiful and critically endangered, animals.

We could go on and on about the accomplishments of 2011. Zoobilee (chaired by Heidi Lent and Kathy Grogan) was a Royal Experience!; Zoolights broke attendance records and provided a holiday treat to over 135,000 visitors; the education department had great success with programs like BioBlitz, etc. While we are proud of 2011, we now look forward to what 2012 has in store for us.

Our nationally recognized Wild Wonders Outdoor Theater will be premiering a brand new show this summer. Zoobilee 2012 will be transformed into an intimate, exclusive and MISSION FOCUSED fund-raiser. And then of course there is our inspirational and ever changing animal collection. Just like the rest of us, you'll have to wait to hear exciting animal news as it unfolds.

Happy New Year to all of you and thank you for being a part this amazing organization! ↑

MALOSI

New male tiger coming to Point Defiance Zoo to breed

Zoo staff are preparing for the arrival of a new Sumatran tiger. Malosi, a male tiger from Honolulu Zoo in Hawaii, is coming to Tacoma to breed with Jaya, the zoo's female tiger and mother of the two tiger cubs born in 2010.

Malosi – whose name means strong and powerful in Samoan – is three years old. He was one of three litter mates born at Honolulu Zoo and hasn't yet fathered a litter of cubs.

"We're so excited about Malosi's arrival and the pair's potential to produce cubs," said general curator Dr. Karen Goodrowe Beck. "The Sumatran tiger is critically endangered and we're working hard to protect and boost the population of this extraordinary species."

Goodrowe Beck was recently appointed to coordinate the North American Sumatran tiger Species Survival Plan,[®] part of a global effort (with Australia, Indonesia, Japan and Europe) to ensure the long-term sustainability and health of captive tigers by creating the best possible breeding pairs.

There are about 200 Sumatran tigers in zoos around the world, including about 70 in the Breeding tigers helps sustain the zoo-based population and raises public awareness about the importance of conserving the tigers in the wild.

United States. Point Defiance Zoo has three of the tigers: Jaya, her year-and-half-old cub Bima and his father Bali. This tiger sub-species is native to the Indonesian island of Sumatra. But poaching and a loss of habitat have caused the wild tiger population to dwindle to fewer than 300. Breeding tigers helps sustain the zoo-based population and raises public awareness about the importance of conserving the tigers in the wild. Point Defiance Zoo also supports tiger conservation by providing funding to tiger projects in Indonesia. 🐅
